* [REDACTED] Comment. [REDACTED] from the same source, reports that on 7 January 1951 there were 50,000 Soviet troops in the Mukden area. Twenty thousand of these (according to [REDACTED] from the same source) were transferred in late January. [REDACTED] from a different source, says that in November 1950 there were 25 Soviet divisions in the Northeast. [REDACTED], from a different source, reports 200,000 Soviet troops in the Port Arthur-Dairen area in early December 1950. According to [REDACTED] from a different source, before 10 February 1951 there were only two Soviet divisions in north Manchuria and none in south Manchuria. [REDACTED], from a different source, reports 9,500 Soviet troops in Mukden in mid-February.
